Updated labeling requirements for NCC Approved devices

Following the announcement of the new Compliance Approval Regulations for Controlled Telecommunications Radio-Frequency Device on 3rd July 2017, Taiwan Regulator National Communications Commission (NCC) have updated their labeling requirements for already Approved products.

The new labelling requirements will come into force from 6th September 2017. The main changes include the following:

1. In addition to affixing the NCC label on the product, it is now also necessary to have the NCC logo on the product packaging. This will be required for all new import consignments of already Approved products after 6th September 2017, as well as new products Approved after this date. Please see the NCC logo below, together with an example of the NCC label:

   The NCC logo can also be in black ink. There is no restriction on the size, and where to place it on the package. Affixing the NCC logo to the product packaging as a sticker is also acceptable.

2. E-labeling is now accepted to replace the physical NCC label on product, however it will also be necessary to affix the NCC logo to the product packaging.

3. For already Approved products sold on the internet, the NCC label must be shown on the website.
