

Energy Audits and Surveys

Kiwa Gastec is often commissioned by the managers of unusual or complex premises keen to reduce energy costs, but not sure where to start.

We have worked with a wide range of settings, such as shower manufacturers (industrial plating processes), foods manufacturers, global hand sanitiser producers, print workshops, schools, leisure centres, London theatres, laboratories, Wildfowl and Wetlands Trust, farms, cottages and retail outlets.

Energy audits and surveys are useful for any commercial or industrial organisation.

An energy survey is designed to take a close look at your organisation, to work out ways of improving your energy efficiency (and lowering your bills). Our Assessor will visit your site to analyse your energy use, taking into account factors such as the fabric of the buildings and the energy requirements of your operations. We will then give you a report which identifies reasonable measures your organisation can take to reduce your energy usage, and improve your energy efficiency. Understanding exactly what uses the energy that you purchase, and how efficiently it is used, can help to identify where changes need to be made. Even small alterations can reap substantial savings, thus improving your balance sheet and minimising the impact of legislation.
