

The JAS certificate opens the doors to the organic market in the Rising Sun Country.

Kiwa BCS Öko-Garantie GmbH is one of the pioneers of the organic movement in Europe. Kiwa BCS offers inspection and certification in all areas of organic production, including farmers, processors, (re) packers, importers, exporters and storage companies.

Japanese imports about 40% of the national food demand. An increasing proportion of this food import is organic certified products. With the JAS certificate, you have the right to label your products with the Kiwa BCS JAS seal. When you have JAS certification, you can sell and export your products to the relevant importers, companies or customers in Japan as Bio (Japanese "yuki").

What you want to know?

Kiwa BCS offers the possibility of certification according to the Japanese Agricultural Standard (JAS) for organic products and processed foods for the entire organic chain of production, including repackaging or re-labeling of products. These products can be marketed directly to Japan without any restrictions.

Certified by Kiwa

Kiwa BCS Öko-Garantie has more than 25 years of experience in organic certification. In 1992, BCS was the first German certificate to be registered under the European Union Organic Regulation. Kiwa BCS-Öko Garantie had a significant place in the European market and gained a strong international presence in all major markets for organic products such as the EU, USA and Japanese.

According to accreditations, records and collaborations, Kiwa BCS is able to provide access to all organic markets around the globe (Global Organic Market).
