

Calibration

Keeping state of the art test equipment in good working order requires care, discipline and correct maintenance and calibration procedures. The accuracy of components can drift over time, but with correct maintenance programmes and regular calibration, accurate measurement performance is guaranteed.

This service is for owners of test rigs requiring calibration.

Kiwa offers technical support, as well as a calibration service to suit your requirements. For example, originally, our rigs needed to be shipped back to Holland for calibration, but now we can come to the rig and offer a complete calibration service on site.
